

2020 SPEARS Southwest Tour and Spears Modified Series Seasons Livestreamed on SpearsRacing.TV

Bakersfield, CA – The 2020 SPEARS Southwest Tour Series and Spears Manufacturing Modified Series presented by Lucas Oil season's will be even more visible with the recently formed SpearsRacing.TV channel. With a partnership between both series and Low Budget TV (LBTv), all of the events on the 2020 schedule will be livestreamed.

Last week it was announced that both race series will receive expanded national television coverage by MAVTV in which all events will be broadcasted on the motorsports network in 2020.

In 2006, Jeffrey Best and Tommy Mason started Low Budget TV as a means to deliver fun racing content to the world. Having been at the racetrack since birth, it's the only place they know to be on a Saturday night. As kids, they would travel all around the Southwest with their parents, so it's no surprise that one of their all-time favorite divisions growing up was the SPEARS Southwest Tour Series.

"Tommy and Jeffrey at LBTv are so dedicated to our sport and helped bring this entire package together. Their knowledge of the drivers in both series will really enhance the race fan's experience when they are watching the races on SpearsRacing.TV", commented the SRL's Brian Olsen.

In 2014, Low Budget TV made the transition to live broadcasting and has grown immensely in recent years. From broadcasts all over the nation, Low Budget TV has become known not just in the US, but around the world.

"It is an honor for Low Budget TV to be partnered with SPEARS Southwest Tour Series and Spears Manufacturing Modified Series for the 2020 season" stated Best.

SpearsRacing.TV's coverage of the SPEARS Southwest Tour Series and the Spears Manufacturing Modified Series presented by Lucas Oil will begin at the "All-Star Showdown" at Irwindale Speedway on Saturday, February 1st.
